

CINEMA 360 VIDEO PACKAGE – THE PHANTOM

The Ultimate Home Cinema setup!!

A lot of movies are filmed in the 2.35:1 aspect ratio-when you watch on a 16:9 screen you get those annoying black bars top and bottom because the 1920 x 1080 resolution is compromised to the extent where 1080 is less than 800. The ideal solution to this is to have an anamorphic lens which naturally stretches the image across the 2.35:1 screen. The Panasonic PT-AT5000 has a clever compromise, the ability to create different lens memories and instantly recall them and it can even auto detect from the source.

The picture above is when the projector is in 16:9 mode, when showing 2.35:1 material black bars are present. The picture below shows the same image when the projector has detected the black bars, moved into 2.35:1 mode and zoomed the image up.
